The Census defines Economic Activity as “whether or not a person aged 16 and over was working or looking for work in the week before census. Rather than a simple indicator of whether or not someone was currently in employment, it provides a measure of whether or not a person was an active participant in the labour market.”<sup>1</sup>

Across Johnstone North, Kilbarchan and Lochwinnoch, 38.6% of people aged 16 to 74 were in full-time employment, compared to the Renfrewshire average of 41%. Almost 17% of people in the ward were retired, higher than the Renfrewshire average of 15.53%, while there were also a higher proportion of people with a long-term illness or disability preventing them from working. There was a higher rate of unemployment within the ward compared with the rest of Renfrewshire; however there was a higher rate of self-employment within Johnstone North, Kilbarchan and Lochwinnoch than there was across Renfrewshire. The ward is less economically active than the whole of Renfrewshire; there are more men in full-time employment than women, while more women look after the family at home or are in part-time employment.
